ALL ABOARD

THE train had just pulled into the Zooville station and Sammy Squirrel and Roger Raccoon were all set to board it when Roger remembered they had forgotten to take the most important thing along with them. Sammy and Roger were off to visit Chester Chipmunk in Chipmunkville and they had bought him a present which both of them had completely forgotten to pack in their suitcases.

Sammy hurried home to get the package which actually was the reason Sammy and Roger were traveling all the way to Chipmunkville. It was Chester's birthday and Sammy and Roger didn't feel right going to his party without bringing a gift.

Roger was talking to the train conductor asking him to please hold the train for a few minutes while Sammy ran home to retrieve the forgotten present. The conductor informed Roger that the train could wait for no one and had to keep on its schedule. So Roger looked glumly as the train started off without him. The next train wouldn't get in to the Zooville station for a least a couple of hours. Roger wondered whether or not Sammy and he would ever get to Chester's party.

Sammy came rushing up to the station with the package under his arm and asked Roger where the train was.

"The train is probably at the next station by now," Roger answered. "It seems that the conductor just didn't think we were important enough to hold a train for. We'll just have to wait for the next one."

So Roger and Sammy waited two hours and finally a train arrived. In their haste to get aboard neither one inquired whether or not the train stopped at Chipmunkville. Instead they both settled themselves down in their seats. The train started and both Sammy and Roger commented on the fact that they were lucky to have a swell party to go to. Little did they know that the train they were on would never get to Chipmunkville.

The conductor asked to see their tickets so that he could punch them and when he saw that they were going to Chipmunkville he calmly informed them they were on the wrong train.

"On the wrong train!" Roger shouted. "How could we possibly be on the wrong train?"

"It's quite simple," replied the conductor, "you have a ticket to Chipmunkville. This train is an express that just doesn't stop at that station."

"What can we do now?" inquired Sammy.

"Well," said the conductor who was feeling quite sorry for the boys, "you'll have to ride all the way to Bayshore which is the first stop on this train. When we get there buy a ticket back to Zooville and then wait for the next train which will take you to Chipmunkville."

"If we do that, we'll certainly miss the party we are going to," Sammy stated. "But if that's the way it is I guess that's what we'll have to do. Only we won't wait for any train when we get to Zooville. By the time we get home it will be time to go to sleep."

But the boys were in for a surprise. When the train got into Bayshore they had a terrific idea. Since Bayshore was right on the water why not go in for a nice swim. And sure enough—that's just what they did.

After refreshing themselves they walked back to the railroad station and waited patiently for the train that would take them back to Zooville. They sent off a telegram to Chester wishing him a happy birthday and briefly told him why they couldn't attend his party.

When the train arrived Roger and Sammy both carefully asked the conductor if this was the right train to Zooville before boarding. After making sure it was they took their seats and before long the trip was over. Zooville station never looked so good to any two weary travelers.

Sammy and Roger both got the surprise of their life upon looking out the window of the train. Who was standing there—it couldn't be—but it was—CHESTER CHIPMUNK. How could Chester be in Zooville when he was supposed to be having a party in Chipmunkville the boys wondered.

When they got off the train they immediately rushed up to Chester.

"What are you doing here?" Sammy asked.

"Well," Chester replied, "when I received your wire saying you couldn't attend my party I just had to come over here to show you something. Come on, I've got it set up in your house, Sammy."

The three boys went to Sammy's house and as soon as they opened the door Roger and Sammy yelled at once.

"Oh, no, get them out of here and get out fast!"

Chester couldn't understand their horror at what they had seen but he knew his surprise was a complete bust.

"Gee whiz," Chester muttered, "I never know you guys hated trains."

Sammy and Roger smiled to themselves as Chester packed up his toy train set that he was so excited about and just sauntered on out the door.
